Terms

Accession—Newly commissioned officer or new enlisted recruit entering extended active duty with no prior military service. Refers to student entries rather than graduates.

Advanced Ready Training—Level of readiness training beyond Ready Airman Training to be completed by identified Airmen. Consists of enhanced training designed to provide Airmen with individual skills required to increase mission resilience of force elements up to Level III.

Advanced Training—Formal course that provides individuals who are qualified in one or more positions of their AF specialty with additional skills and knowledge to enhance their expertise in the career field. Training is for selected career Airmen at the advanced level of the AF specialty. Provides advanced training to individuals who have completed initial skills training. This type of training is required when increased competency is required to meet higher (advanced) knowledge, skill, or attitude requirement.

Basic Military Training—Training provided to non-prior service Airmen to affect an orderly transition from civilian to military life that provides basic foundational competencies and concepts (e.g., individual responsibilities; organizational structures; and military customs, courtesies, standards, and traditions) to newly accessed (entry-level) personnel with no previous military experience.

Competency—A combination of knowledge, skills, abilities, and other characteristics manifesting in observable and measurable pattern of behaviors required for mission success.

Competency Model—a collection of competencies that together defines successful performance in a particular work setting. Competency models are the foundation for important human resource functions such as recruitment and hiring, training and development, and retention. Competency models can be developed for specific jobs, job groups, organizations, occupations, or missions.

Education—Academic and experiential learning focused on general bodies of knowledge, principles within a given discipline, and habits of the mind. This type of learning is applicable to a broad spectrum of foundational and/or occupational competencies.

Entry—A transaction indicating an individual started or restarted a formal course of instruction.

Exodus—Established timeframe in which Airmen are authorized to use regular leave during the Christmas and New Year federal holiday period.

Field Training—Technical, operator, and other training conducted by either a training detachment or mobile training team at operational locations on specific systems and associated direct-support equipment for maintenance and aircrew personnel.

Force Development—The deliberate effort to maximize force readiness through a variety of recruiting, educational, training, and experiential learning activities, opportunities, and services ensuring all Airmen possess the competencies they need to meet Department of the Air Force mission requirements.

Foundational Competencies—A set of accepted and valued competencies (e.g., Airman's Foundational Competencies), which enable success across a wide-array of DAF missions, roles, functions, and duties.

Functional Manager—Senior leaders, designated by the appropriate functional authorities, who provide day-to-day management responsibility over specific functional communities. While they should maintain an institutional focus with regard to resource development and distribution, functional managers are responsible for ensuring their specialties are equipped, developed, and sustained to provide Department of the Air Force capabilities.

Graduate—A student who successfully completes a formal course of instruction.

Initial Skills Training—An overarching term for enlisted initial skills and (non-rated line) officer initial skills technical training. For enlisted, it refers to a formal school pipeline, comprised of one or more courses, that results in the award of the 3-skill-level in an AF specialty. For officers, it refers to a formal school pipeline comprised of one or more courses of mandatory training needed to become qualified in their AF specialty. Training designed to provide primary foundational and occupational competencies for a specific AF specialty, occupational series, special duty, or function to individuals who have completed entry-level training or accession program requirements.

Military Training Instructor—An enlisted Airman with the special duty identifier of 8B000 assigned to a training unit executing duties and responsibilities as prescribed by DAFECD.

Military Training Leader—An enlisted Airman with the special duty identifier of 8B100 assigned to a training unit executing duties and responsibilities as prescribed in the DAFECD.

Mission Readiness Training—Formal training courses to aid mission accomplishment. Mission readiness training provides advanced, supplemental, and residential craftsman technical training for courses of TDY length as defined in The Joint Travel Regulation for officers, enlisted and civilian personnel when other types of training (on-the-job-training, unit training, and exportable and mobile training) will not satisfy the need.

Mission-Ready Airmen—Air Force members who are trained to perform tasks outside of their primary job specialty. The goal of mission-ready Airmen training is to create teams that can work independently to accomplish missions while reducing risk.

Non-Prior Service Airmen—Entry-level accession Airmen with no prior service (to include sister service) experience.

Occupational Competencies—A set of competencies required of all Airmen within a specific workforce category (a group of functions requiring similar work, e.g., Engineering). They describe technical/functional skills, knowledge, abilities, behaviors, and other characteristics needed to perform that function's mission successfully.

Program Guidance Letters—Establishes training requirements for AETC execution. Program Guidance Letters are the official tasking documents enabling AETC planners and programmers to acquire the necessary resources for accomplishment of the tasking. The Program Guidance Letters align the AF requirements with the Planning, Programming, Budgeting, and Execution process. Includes Enlisted Initial Skills, Officer Initial Skills, Trained Dog Requirements, Mission Readiness Training, Field Training, and Non-Resident training. If the funding changes in the DoD Program Objective Memorandum process, AF/A1 determines how the changes will affect the Program Guidance Letters and publishes official amendments, as necessary.

Programmed Technical Training—Air Education and Training Command documents reflecting training requirements by TRQI and course for enlisted initial skills, officer initial skills, and mission readiness training programs. For enlisted initial skills, the documents include projected elimination rates for active-duty AF non-prior service students. Unlike the program guidance letters, which reflect graduate requirements into the field for each AF specialty, the programmed technical training documents reflect entries (or allocations, or class seats) by AF specialty, course, and (TRQI).

Ready Airman Training—Training that prepares an Airman to survive, operate and succeed in a deployed environment, while reinforcing Airman's foundational competencies. Ready Airman Training provides Airmen the knowledge, skills, and abilities to survive, operate and succeed across the full range of military operations in support of combatant commands. These knowledge, skills and abilities are not routinely acquired during initial occupational, mission oriented or ancillary training venues.

Records Disposition Schedule—Document providing mandatory instructions for the lifecycle management of records (and non-record materials) in any format or media type. The Records Disposition Schedule provides for the disposition of records when agency business needs for the records ceases, (i.e., destruction of temporary records and transfer of permanent records to the National Archives of the United States).

Recruit—An individual who signs an enlistment, appointment, or commissioning contract. Recruit status terminates upon entry into the AF, withdrawal of selection, permanent disqualification, or recruit-initiated termination of processing.

Special Warfare—Special Tactics Officer, Tactical Air Control Party Officer, Combat Rescue Officer, Pararescue, Combat Control, Tactical Air Control Party, and Special Reconnaissance career fields.

Supplemental Training—Formal AF specialty specific training (post initial skills training) on new equipment, methods or technology that are not suited for on-the-job training. Provides supplemental or additional training to individuals who have completed initial skills training. This type of training is required to meet new or unique mission requirements.

Technical Training—Instructional courses used to develop the force and prepare individuals to perform tasks within an AF specialty, occupational series, special duty, or function.

Total Force—Includes all Airmen and Guardians (Regular Air Force, AFR, ANG, Regular Space Force, and DAF civilians).

Training—Formal and informal learning focused on proficiency development, which is the attainment and retention of skills, knowledge, and attitudes required to meet specific functions or job performance requirements.

Training Quota—A requirement for a single seat in a specific class.

Training Requester Quota Identifier—A four-character communication code within Oracle Training Administration used to convey annual or supplemental training requirements, quota allocations, allocation confirmations, and student-tracking information between a user of training and the provider (owner) of training. TRQIs are assigned to a service branch, component, MAJCOM, forward operating agency, direct reporting unit, or functional area to ensure training accountability. Only one TRQI is assigned to a functional entity or training category.

Training Requester Quota Identifier Manager—Person(s) appointed to gather and report annual training requirements and manage quotas. While only one TRQI code is assigned to a functional entity, there may be multiple managers handling courses.
