SUMMARY OF CHANGES

This document has been substantially revised and needs to be completely reviewed. Major changes include rescinding the content of the previous AFPD 10-43, Stability Operations, and replacing it with policies, roles, and responsibilities for implementing Air Advising/Security Force Assistance cross-functional authority.

1. Background.

1.1. Given the complex demands of assisting foreign personnel to develop an aviation enterprise, Airmen who plan, lead, and conduct air advising operations shall be specifically organized, trained, and equipped to do so. The role of an Air Advisor is to plan, execute, and evaluate operations that increase partner nation and coalition air power capabilities. These actions are undertaken in support of the air component support plan and Combatant Commander campaign plan requirements, and to inform DoD decision making options.

1.2. Air Advisors. Air Advisors are Airmen who are specifically trained to provide air-minded subject matter expertise to execute air advising operations when tasked to do so through Air Force processes. The Air Force specifically trains Air Advisors and develops scalable air advising capabilities within both conventional forces and Special Operations Forces. Air Advisors plan, lead, and conduct operations and activities across the range of military operations including politically sensitive, hostile, and non-hostile environments.

1.3. Air Advising is the operational arm of Air Force Security Cooperation. Along with a suite of other scalable and tailorable Air Force capabilities, air advising is part of unique air power SFA applications designed to develop, organize, train, equip, build, and advise/assist sustainable foreign security forces capacity and capability. SFA is a subset of the Department of Defense's overall Security Cooperation initiatives that involve developmental tasks *(*assess, train, advise, assist/accompany, and equip) to support partner nations in the development, sustainment, employment, and integration of aviation assets with organic surface forces, and forces of coalition partners when necessary. It does not include other Security Cooperation activities such as bilateral meetings and non-security sector civil affairs activities.

2. Policy. To ensure air advising/SFA operations readiness for the purpose of supporting air component and Combatant Commander requirements, the Air Force will:

2.1. Ensure Air Advisors are organized, trained, and equipped to conduct Air Advising operations in permissive, politically sensitive, and contested environments.

2.2. Establish policy, guidance, and instruction for Air Advisor functional management, force development, operations, and training.

2.3. Ensure appropriate Air Force inspections, assessment, monitoring, and evaluations are conducted to ensure readiness, and compliance of Air Advisor/SFA operations with Air Force and joint standards.

2.4. Plan, program, budget for, and report Air Advisor/SFA capabilities and operations in concert with Air Force corporate planning processes.
