1.2.5. Due to Privacy Act concerns, all nominees being nominated are required to give permission to use their name, rank, duty title, and unit of assignment prior to the publishing of award announcements. Nomination packages will include a statement from each nominee stating that the member does or does not agree to this. Members must sign and date this statement (digitally signed versions are acceptable). See Attachment 2.

AVIATION ENERGY AND INNOVATION AWARDS

15.1. Purpose. The Mobility Air Force (MAF) "Aviation Energy and Innovation" awards program recognizes individuals and groups at all levels whose outstanding performance has made significant contributions to MAF aviation energy and innovation efforts. This program encourages commanders to promote an environment of innovation and creativity, in order to optimize operational energy, through fuel use reduction or more-efficient operations. Optimizing operational energy leads to increased combat capability, increased aircraft life span, lower aircraft maintenance costs, and more training opportunities. These awards recognize the most-deserving units across the MAF enterprise.

15.2. Although this is an objective award, AMC/A3F reserves the right to disqualify wings with low compliance rates, in terms of "fuel usage data" collection.

15.3. Date Due. Nomination packages for the MAF Aviation Energy and Innovation Award of the Year must be sent to AMC/A3F (amc.a3e.fueloffice@us.af.mil) by 1 September or as directed in official call message and online database at https://access.afpc.af.mil/.

15.5. Related Higher Headquarters Publication. AFPD 90-17, Energy and Water Management, AFI 90-1702, Operational Energy.

15.6. Eligibility. This is a MAF program, not exclusive to AMC. All MAF organizations that affect aviation fuel efficiency, to include en-route locations, are eligible to compete in this awards program.

15.7. Award Type. Plaque

15.8. Who May Nominate. Any MAF organization (from any MAJCOM), at any level or size, may submit nomination packages for the MAF Aviation Energy and Innovation Award of the Year.

15.9. Nomination Package. Follow specific guidance in the official call message and online database.

15.10. Board Composition. AMC/A3F will conduct an evaluation board to grade the nomination packages and select the winner of the MAF Aviation Energy and Innovation Award of the Year. The board will be chaired by AMC/A3F, and will consist of at least one Active Duty, Guard and Reserve member. The board will review all submissions, rank order them, and present them to the AMC/A3/10 Director for approval.

15.11. Award Presentation. Presented at the annual Airlift/Tanker Association (A/TA) conference, or similar venue as directed by AMC/CC (e.g., Phoenix Rally). Selected wings will be contacted prior to the conference to confirm participation in the awards presentation. Presentation may be delegated to a lower-level commander.
